FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, Dec. 12, 1931.

Dear Mr. Harris:

I am, as you will see, in Old Charleston by the sea, and as I have not been receiving my News very regularly, thought I would ask you to change the address to Room 12, P. O. Building, Charleston, S. C.

I am located here for the Winter, and find that I can not get along without the "News." It comes to me like a breeze from the land of the blest; it is like the shadow of a great rock in a weary land, as it comes to my desk weekly, teeming with news of the people I love. God bless old Kentucky. I do not realize how much I love her until I land in other climes and compare their ideals with those of the grand old Commonwealth in which I was once a "barefooted boy with face of tan."

The Exposition here is now on, and really Charleston deserves a great deal of credit for she has done it all and is going to have a good show. I take pleasure in mailing to you to-day the "News" and "Courier" from which you will be able to get an idea of what will be done this winter.

Give my warmest regards to all my friends.

Very Respectfully,

R. J. AUSTIN,

Room 12, P. O. Bld'g, Charleston, S. C.

Mr. J. B. Watson, of this place, has gone to Burdette on business.

Mr. J. B. Russell made a business trip to Casey county last week.

There was a musical entertainment given at the home of Miss Maggie Russell last Saturday night. Several young people were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Speaker Henderson to-day announced the rest of the House committees. In the list Kentuckians are named as follows: Judiciary, Smith; Banking and Currency, Rhea; Naval Affairs, Wheeler; Agriculture, Allen; Territories, Boring.

The House passed a resolution providing for a holiday adjournment from December 19 to January 6.

The Senate to-day after routine business, upon motion of Mr. Lodge, at 12:45 o'clock went into executive session.

Senator Hoar presented the report of the Committee on Judiciary recommending the confirmation of Attorney General Knox. He made a brief statement referring to the protest against confirmation as made by the Anti-Trust League, but said that after giving careful attention to this representation the committee had decided to recommend confirmation. No opposition was voiced, but action on the nomination was postponed by common consent. The Senate then, before taking up the isthmian canal treaty, proceeded to pass upon other nominations, of which there are an exceptionally large number before the Senate.

Senator Lodge spoke in favor of the treaty.

Between Theodore Roosevelt's Minneapolis speech on trusts and the President's message on the same subject there is a yawning chasm filled only with the warm air of a few interviews with Mark Hanna on the back stairs of the White House.

Kentucky Woman.

Mrs. Madeline Cone and her string of seven thoroughbreds are the sensation of this season's meet at Busseyville. Mrs. Cone not only runs her horses in her own name and colors, but she personally superintends their stable.

Mrs. Cone is from Kentucky; that explains her beauty and love of fine horses. She is a young woman whose dark eyes, gentle manners and soft speech are typical of the South. She was in this city last year and attracted much attention, not only on account of her personal charms, but on account of the wealthy widow of one of Denver's rich mine owners.

Mrs. Cone is not a plunger—in fact she never bets on the races, but runs her horses for the glory and proves they may capture. She has not the gambling instincts of Lady Alky, who bet her all on "Pickamoor," and declared if the lost her diamonds she would buy paste and begin life over again.

Mrs. Cone's father, the late William S. Morgan, was the owner of one of the finest stud farms in Kentucky. Her great uncle was Morgan the Rider, a name hallowed on the Confederate roll of honor. This is good Blue Grass stock that ought to produce a Queen of the turf.

Here is the story of a wealthy woman who does not collect pigs, old shoes, rare china, fancies any other of the articles usually indulged in by woman. Her fad is fine horse flesh.

Flying Machines.

It all goes well flying machine parties will be all the rage next summer. In fact, after one has talked with Gustave Whitehead, who says he will soon fly from here to New York, it is quite easy to picture delicate families going off for the summer's vacation in a flying machine. It will be easy for Boston folk to make a trip to Coney Island and New Yorkers to make a dash to Bar Harbor.

The expense will not be so very great either. Inventor Whitehead expects to soon establish a factory for turning out flying machines at a rapid rate and a comparatively small cost. He promises a very neat machine capable of carrying six persons comfortably for $2,000. When this happens it is easy to picture the fate of the automobile with its record of a mile in 64 1/2 seconds.

Mr. Whitehead is in earnest. He says he has a financial backer a New York millionaire who has a fancy for flying machines and faith in the ability of the inventor to turn out the real article.

The New Yorker, whose identity is kept secret, makes frequent visits here to inspect a machine that is now being built under the direction of Mr. Whitehead in a one story shed erected for the purpose of hiding the building operations from the gaze of the curious.

Fifteen skilled machinists are employed. They work in two shifts—one in the daytime and one at night. Mr. Whitehead is anxious to complete the machine at the earliest possible moment. He intends to make the trip to New York and back in the machine now building.

One of the features of the machine is a new calcium carbide motor of extraordinary light weight. Motors of the same power, such as those used in automobiles, weigh four times as much, it is claimed, as the one perfected for the flying machine. When seen, Mr. Whitehead said:

"A flying machine will be put on the market that will accommodate six persons, the cost being about $2,000 when the model on which we are now working is completed. I will make good my assertion that I would fly to New York."—Bridgeport Conn. telegram to the New York World.

"About five years ago I was troubled with catarrh of the lower bowel," says C. T. Chisholm, 424 Dearborn Ave. Chicago, and although I consulted several eminent physicians who prescribed for me, I found their remedies failed to in any way relieve me, and the trouble almost became chronic. I once concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I beg to assure you that I was most acutely surprised to find after taking two doses of the remedy that I was completely relieved of the disease that had cost me so much trouble and annoyance. I am thankful to say that I have not suffered from it since." For sale by M. Chaves.

THE MONKEY MAN.

Ye Sages versed in ancient lore, Who would all mysteries explore, Will you please tell us if you know How men from apes and monkeys grow? Should we the theory dispute

That Adam was a vicious brute, Or would you teach us to believe The same was true of mother eve? And as the tadpole in the bog Evolves into a living frog, Wild monkeys from their tails were freed

When they were gentlemen indeed. Do you maintain those monkeys knew How unto others they should do? Did heathen monkeys have a school In which to learn the golden rule?

Was this the golden monkey race? Do you maintain those monkeys knew How to be kind to their monkey kind? Did monkeys go to others then As others monkey now with men.

Now these are not mere monkey jokes, To tease our own dear monkey folks, For by this modern monkey plan Your grandpa monkey was a man. And dressed in monkey tail and skin As then did all our monkey kin Before our monkey arts and style Did other monkey arts define.

This was the style in monkey days If all our folks had monkey ways, And other monkeygoose like those You'd be dressed in monkey clothes.

Deflation of Kiss.

A kiss is an insipid and tasteless morsel, which becomes delicious and delectable in proportion as it is flavored with love.

The sweetest fruit on the tree is love. The oftener plucked the more abundant it grows.

A thing of use to one but much prized by two. The baby's right, the lover's privilege the parent's benison and the hypocrite's mask.

That which you cannot take without giving and cannot give without taking. The food by which the frame of love is fed.

The flag of truce in the petty war of courtship and marriage. The scene of agony to a bashful man.

The only "smack" that will calm a storm. Nothing divided between two. Not enough for one, just enough for two, too much for three.

The only really agreeable two faced action under the sun, or the moon, or either. The sweetest libel of the world's language.

A woman's most effective argument whether to cajole the heart of father, control the humors of a husband or console the griefs of childhood. A kiss from a pretty girl is like having hot treacle poured down your back by angels.

The thunder-clap of the lips which invariably follows the lightning glance of the eyes. A report at head quarters. Everybody's action edition of "Romeo and Juliet."

What the child receives free, what the young man steals, and what the old may buy. The drop that runneth over when the turn of love full.

That in which two heads are better than one. Kentucky spelling bees have a chance to put their best speller against a man who is challenging the world in a spelling contest.

Professor Jones, who is teaching a school, near Lancaster, Pa., challenges the world in a contest for the world's championship for the best speller. He has run to cover some of the most accomplished professors in orthography in America. He has spelled in contests fifteen thousand catch words without a miss or a skip. The address of the accomplished orthographer is Professor D. Jones, Philadelphia, Pa., where any ambitious speller may be accommodated.

The Best Plaster. A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by M. Chaves.

It is said that the various Sunday-schools of Columbia will remember the children Christmas. Each pupil should receive a present. The cost will not be a little, but all the little hearts will be made glad.

Merchants and other business men cannot be too careful about their valuables. The country is full of safe burglars, judging from reports in the papers. There is scarcely a day but that two or three robberies are reported.

It commenced raining here Friday morning about 10 o'clock and it rained all day long. It is said that it is the most disagreeable day of the winter.

The Greensburg paper reports that Capt. W. E. Cabell's horse ran away a few days ago and that the gentleman is now laid up with a broken left arm. He hopes that he will soon be brought around all right.

The Bell Telephone Company is now working in the election. It is our understanding that they have already arranged to put in an exchange at Greensburg and to run their lines over Green county. It is said they intend Taylor and Adair, in fact they propose to line the State.

One-half of the people do not know how the other half lives. Many sit around comfortable fires with well-fitted beds, complaining because their lives have not been thrown in pleasant places, while others are without work, but little food and provisions short.

Commencing next Tuesday evening the young people of Columbia will turn out for the first time. They are gathering of some kind every night during the holidays and every body is anticipating a delightful week. The weather would not hold the young people down.

This evening at 8 o'clock, as has been announced in the News, Mr. O. D. Dye will be married to Miss Sara Butler at the Baptist church in Case Valley. The church will be handsomely decorated and many friends will be present to witness the union of this popular young couple.

The members of Columbia Chapter, No. 7, R. A. M., should remember that the regular meeting night in each month has been changed from the first Monday to Friday evening after the full moon. The change was made to accommodate Companies who could not attend on Monday nights.

It would be well enough for owners of county roads to visit the neighborhood of Mr. O. D. Dye and see the work done by the enterprising farmers. The roads have been graded and gravelled, making travelling smooth and pleasant. There are other sections of the county where the highways are almost impassable.

Deputy Marshall W. N. Sloan, of Clinton county, got into the Red Light District, Louisville, last week and reported that thirty-one dollars had been stolen from him. He caused the arrest of two girls who were acquitted. A revolver was found upon Sloan's person and he was fined twenty-five dollars and ten days.

Mr. W. P. Panett, who handles musical instruments, reached Columbia last Saturday night. The hack was crowded and he rode on the outside. When he reached Columbia he was so chilled that it took some time before he got sufficiently warmed up to take on supper. He did not know how cold it was until he reached the city.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. J. R. Hildman has received a very encouraging letter from the trustees of the University of Columbia in regard to organizing a drill corps at the M. & F. High School. He sends infantry drill regulations. He advises the organization of a company of Cadets under the Statute. At present he has no unused rifles, but thinks he can furnish twenty during the winter, and probably enough for the school.

It is astonishing at the amount of business transacted annually in Columbia when you take into consideration the number of country stores in the county. A gentleman in this place recently made the count and he found nearly sixty stores in Adams outside of Columbia. Notwithstanding all this opposition the merchants of this place still do a better business in 1901 than any previous year.

NOSA TARELL.

Notice.

I will on Saturday, January 18, 1902, at my office in Columbia, receive and hear proof of claims against W. D. Tarter, assigned by Jar. Cornett, Jr., assignee of W. D. Tarter.

To-morrow Mr. James J. Price, of the firm of F. J. Price & Son, and Miss Marie Marshall, a popular teacher of Glenville, will be married at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. James Marshall, Rev. Z. T. Williams officiating. The couple had contemplated a trip to Louisville and other cities, but the extreme cold weather prevents. In a very short time this happy couple will become residents of Columbia and will occupy the cottage the intended groom recently purchased of Mr. J. M. Traylor. The coming event will be the result of a long and devoted courtship. May happiness be with them continuously as they go hand in hand down the stream of time.

Mr. Henry Farley, of this place, had a narrow escape from a water grave last Saturday afternoon. He was returning from Gradyville and meeting several persons upon horseback, he supposed that David's Park was before him. He was in a hurry and being very tired, asked no questions. Upon reaching the stream he drove in and was soon in deep water. The horse and buggy were washed overboard. Farley, however, managed to get out of the water and was rescued by some one who saw him. He was badly shaken and is now in a feeble condition. He has been in a hospital for several days.

A large audience witnessed the closing exercises in Mrs. N. C. Cabell's school Tuesday evening of last week, every body being well pleased with the renditions. Jo Harris was there and he reports that the school is doing very well. The exercises were held in the school house and were very successful.

Mr. J. C. Chapman, of Glenfrost, was in town last Saturday. He was in a hurry and being very tired, asked no questions. Upon reaching the stream he drove in and was soon in deep water. Little Chaps

They were 76,638 potteries in the United States at the end of the fiscal year 1900, or one to every 1,000 inhabitants.

A postmaster in India went hunting in the jungle and was "devoured by a man-eating tiger." What time was it? At 10 P. M.

He-After I left you last night I was sorry I didn't take just one more kiss. Well, you can stay as long as you like.

Odde, shortly after the third crusade Richard was seized with a severe pain in the stomach. What time was it? In the middle of the night.

A lad stooping to dip water from the source of a mountain stream lost his balance and fell headlong. What time was it? Somewhere in the morning.

A traveler once met some fellows whom he gave the following sums of money: To one 12 cents, to another 8 and to another 5. What time was it? A quarter to three.

Those who go into the country for a day's sport should keep the fact in mind that under no circumstances have they a right to hunt on any farm without the consent of the owner, and they are liable to be prosecuted for trespass. Do not intrude yourself upon any farmer, for he has rights you are bound to respect. Besides most farmers have stock on their farms which they can't afford to have frightened or possibly shot by reckless hunters.

An exchange is advocating the organization of a society for the prevention of cruelty to vegetables. Because, just think of digging the eyes out of potatoes, pulling the ears of corn, eating the heads of cabbage, pulling the stalks out of cress, tearing the skin off a peach, breaking the neck of a squash, scalding the lettuce, quartering an apple, squeezing a lemon and similar outrages.

Come to think about it, what is the use of grumbling anyway? It is all right when you kick, but doesn't sound well when any one else kicks. It is rather coarse work. There are reasons for all things, good or bad. A good healthy mind makes a man never needs about "illnesses, hard times, the weather, bad luck, or telephone or mill service." Most kicking is a matter of stomach trouble, anyway. Only listen to some fellow doing a good hard kick at some time and it will break you of the habit if you have it. Kickers and cranks are necessary, so are flies and bugs and beetles, but don't get in their class.

The most foolish thing in the world is to lose one's temper. Of old the wisest of men said: "Better be that ruleth his spirit than be that takes a kick." The person in authority who is self-controlled can control others—children, servants and employer generally. No one can govern subordinates who is not able to govern himself. When one loses temper in the office, he is a bad thing in a busy mood, there is sure to come an after-time of sorrow and repentance, and there is a hurt in the heart which may or may not last for years. There are scars that never cease to throbb, though the old wound seems to be healed. Should death suddenly snatch between a dear one, before pardon for some injustice had been sought and granted, the regret would never pass away.

School Laws

State Superintendent of Schools McChesney has completed his biennial report, and makes the following recommendations to the Legislature.

That the third class teacher certificate be abolished; that the individual school districts be clothed with authority to vote on a proposition to levy tax for building school houses; that the county be made the unit for the taxation; that the present trustee system be so changed as to have only one trustee in a district, appointed by a county board of education, this county board of education to consist of the county superintendent and one member from each municipal district, elected by the people on the regular quadrennial election, the members to give bond for the faithful performance of duty, and to be paid $3 per day for each day as they are actually in session, the number of days they can be in session in one year to be limited by statute, the board to be clothed with authority to build all schoolhouses, purchase all material for same and to purchase all furniture and apparatus; also, to have authority to employ all teachers, except in graded school districts.

Mecca of Millionaires

The millionaire is all flocking to New York from Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco and other cities, says the Sunday New York World. All along Fifth avenue new buildings are being constructed by "outside" money of men.

Senator Clark, of Montana, is building a mansion that will cost nearly $200,000. It will be one of the finest residences in America. It is to have a private theater, every detail of which will be perfect. Senator Clark is a great lover of art. In the Clark gallery of paintings are more master-pieces than in the gallery of any other man in America with the exception of W. K. Vanderbilt. Clark has acquired masterpieces in most of the European capitals looking out for bargains in pictures. His hall of sculpture will vie with that of the Metropolitan Museum.

An other partial residence going up on the further end of Fifth avenue is that of Andrew Carnegie. This house will not have an elaborate exterior as the Clark house, but it is said that its interior decoration will be fully as costly as that of the Senator's home. The Carnegie art and sculpture galleries will represent an investment of about $1,000,000.

Among other important millionaire invaders of New York City are the Crockers, of San Francisco, Chas. Tyson Yerkes, of Chicago, Clarence H. Mackay, the Dalgys, the Huntington the Moores, the Chalmers, the Proctors, the Moores and the Belts.

What Girls Should Learn

Someone had suggested fifteen things that every girl can learn at fifteen. Not every one can learn to play or sing or paint well enough to give pleasure to her friends, but the following accomplishments are within everybody's reach: "Shut the door and but it softly. Keep your own room in tasteful order. Have an hour for resting and rise. Learn to make bread as well as cake. Never let a button stay off twenty-four hours. Always know where your things are. Never let a day pass without doing something to make somebody comfortable. Never come to breakfast without a collar, or go about with your shoes unbuttoned. Speak clearly enough for everybody to understand. Never fight or hum so as to disturb others. Never fuss or fret."—Denver Field and Farm.

Protectionist Plaise

As was to have been expected in the case of an utterance assuring to the interests which they represent, the protectionist newspapers throughout the Union are loud in their praise of that portion of President Roosevelt's message which mildly advocated a vague policy of reciprocity.

These newspapers know well that trade-tariffing is absolutely safe from any material reduction through the operation of such reciprocity treaties as are likely to be sanctioned by the Fifty seventh Congress.

They hope also that a shrewd manipulation of the reciprocity trick will have the effect of deferring beyond 1904 a fight to free the people on the issue of tariff reduction.

If voters can be led to believe that tariff reduction is practically accomplished by means of reciprocity treaties which in fact will cause a general lowering of tariff schedules the gain for the protectionists will be great and the cost little.

That President Roosevelt has been so pliable to the will of the high-tariff trusts as even to stop this side of the views held by the late President McKinley with regard to the necessity for tariff revision is a cause of the greatest rejoicing to protectionist interests and protectionist circles.

The new President was not content upon being so easily managed. There was a grave apprehension in monopoly circles that Mr. Roosevelt would deal with the tariff and the trusts from the point of view of the people who pay the tariff tax which created and now maintains trust monopolies. For this reason his first message to Congress was swathed with considerable unpopularity on the part of the syndicates.

Now, however, the President is known to have yielded to party influences demanding a Republican obedience of trust orders.—St. Louis Republic.

Fells A Deadly Attack

"My wife was so ill that good physicians were unable to help her," writes M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., "but was completely cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills." We have recently read a description of a donation party given to a good country clergyman in part payment of his small salary, the principal result being 27 bushels of beans and a large variety of second-hand clothing for his children. The paleness of the clergyman's wife gave out. Next Sunday she dressed all her children in the donated clothing and under her direction they marched up the aisle just as the good pastor was reading that beautiful passage, "Yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." We need not add that the next donation party was of an entirely different character.

James Green, a lad of about 14 years, who resides near High Bridge, came near meeting his death in Kentucky river a few days ago if reports be true. He was out duck hunting in a canoe and just struck a flock of the beauties, which rose and flew over his head. He immediately brought his "trusty" to his shoulder and fired away. The gun being one of the "kicking" kind, as all shotguns are, it kicked him over the side of the skiff and in such a manner that he was absolutely helpless, his head being submerged in the water while his feet were entangled in some trappings in the boat. He would have drowned in a few minutes, but for the fact that a man near by on the shore saw the awful predicament of young Green and jumping into a skiff which was moored close by, rowed to the drowning youth just in time to save his life.—Harrodsburg Sargy.

Can a Thief be Successful

It has been said that there never was a successful thief who could not have made more money by devoting an equal amount of energy and brains to some honest pursuit.

If there can be such a thing as a "successful" criminal—if the word "success" can in any way belong to the enemies of society and good morals—there is much truth in the statement.

One thinks of George Zollihofer in this connection.

He was receiving teller of the Williamsburg, (N. Y.) Savings Bank. Now he is a scoundrel, a miserable, trembling supplicating thief.

He used the first of brains, the keen edge of his ability, to so doctor the bank's books that they would look honest to the sharpest examiners.

He did it month after month. There was hardly a day that he didn't steal, and every day it became more and more difficult to keep the mass of lying figures looking innocent.

But he did it. Crime seemed to sharpen his wits. He reached a point finally where he took pride in his ability to fool the people who trusted him. He was smarter than they, and he lived it.

And then one day his mischievous Louis of cards fell.

It is a way structure reared in crime here, and the teller collapsed and carried to prison by two policemen.

There he broke down and confessed, stole something less than $100,000 and says he is sorry.

He is sick, and the doctors say he will probably die within two weeks.

Up to the day of his arrest he was a "successful" criminal. Now the lowest individual who breathes the air of freedom wouldn't change places with him.

There is nothing in all the world that ever has or ever can take the place of rugged honesty. It is the only way from the cradle to the coffin.

Frank weddings seem to be the order of the day. Last week an Ohio girl married the photograph of her lover who was in another state, a proof, answering questions for the absent groom. Now it is a Kentucky girl who figures in a long distance wedding.

At Bowling Green Saturday, Miss Maud Wilcott stood in the telegraph office and became the bride of Dr. J. W. Simmons, of Haver, Texas. They married by wire, the questions being asked from the Texas end by a justice of the peace. They were answered by Miss Wilcott. Miss Wilcott is unusually pretty. Her home is at Lewisburg, Logan county, Ky. She is at present teaching school in Butler county. She met the doctor recently while enroute to Rochester. The telegraph operator and her newspaper acquaintance of Bowling Green were witnesses to the marriage. Mrs. Simmons leaves next week for Texas to join her husband. He will meet her enroute.

The Montreal board of health is convinced that the death rate among children has been increased by child insurance, and it recommends that in the future no insurance be allowed on a child's life until it has reached the age of ten years. It is a sad commentary on our boasted civilization that parents should be suspected of hastening the death of their children in order to secure an insurance.

It looks as if reciprocity would be side-tracked by the tariff barons. For a great many years the beneficiaries of protection have been able to outstep any tariff reform sentiment in the Republican party with the threat that any attack upon the system would jeopardize the entire structure. It is the old doctrine of "hang together or hang separately."

J. N. Hawkins, a prize man Lexington merchant, was shot and robbed in that city last Saturday night. He died 12 hours later. No arrests have been made.

Ben Fultz was arrested in Louisville on complaint of Miss Georgia Applegate, who charges him with making her drunk and stealing her diamond earrings.

How to Cure Croup

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near America, Duchesne county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine child's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as the symptoms appear. For sale by M. Craven.

The Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse Company has contracted to export 7,000 barrels of its whiskey to avoid the tax payments.

Pneumonia Prevented

"Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and the gripe during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thus, Whitfield & Co., 204 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, one of the most prominent druggists in that city, in speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for in gripe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of gripe to result in pneumonia." For sale by M. Craven.
